

The Royal Danish Yacht Club and the Denmark SailGP Team presented by ROCKWOOL has announced an innovative collaboration with SailGP at the 29er European Championship later this month.

The 29er European Championship Mini Impact League has been designed in collaboration with SailGP, who created the global racing league's Impact League in 2021. The sustainable competition among the SailGP teams is a second leaderboard, that at the end of the season adds another championship to win, one for racing - as we know - and one for the planet. Same will count for the 29er European Championship that contains a sustainability competition along the sailing – the Mini Impact League.

Collaboration with SailGP

“It’s fantastic that the Danish team is setting this example to the next generation of sailors, inspired by our SailGP Impact League initiative,” said Rosie Gosling, SailGP’s Impact League Project Manager. “For the 29er European Championships, we have created a fun, inclusive and accessible sustainability program that we hope will inspire and engage young athletes to do their bit, taking action to reduce footprint and deliver positive impact through sport.”

“The International 29er Class is thrilled to partner with Denmark SailGP Team presented by ROCKWOOL and KDY on this important initiative,” adds Joan Mollerus, President of the 29er Class. “Sustainability is mission critical for our sport and for the next generation. We are grateful that Denmark SailGP Team and KDY have created this exciting opportunity to engage our young sailors.”

Sustainability at the heart of the 29er regatta

“In SailGP, we complete a comprehensive audit at every event, which measures our positive impact across multiple key criteria,” explains former 29er sailor Christian Peter Lübeck, who now races for the Denmark SailGP Team, and is also part of the KDY Sustainability Committee. “This Mini Impact League is inspired by that, covering many of the same areas, and puts sustainability at the heart of the 29er regatta.” He continues: “As Danish sailors, sustainability is in our DNA, and we’re really excited to be able to work together with the next generation to showcase, that it is possible to deliver large-scale regattas in a responsible and positive way.”
